From the Amſterdam Courant, dated June 2.

Naples, May 8.

THE Duke de Turſis is arriv'd here with his Squadron of Gallies, and was receiv'd with great Honours. Our Viceroy has forbidden the uſing any Violence in levying the Taxes, leſt that ſhould increaſe the Diſaffection of the People to this Government, and incline them the more to change their Maſter. Manifeſtoes have been diſpers'd in this City, to inform the Neapolitans of the true State of Affairs, and of the Preparations that are made for delivering them from the Yoke of the Houſe of Bourbon, and inviting them to riſe in Arms and not be wanting to themſelves on ſo fair an Occaſion: The Viceroy has taken great Pains to prevent the ſpreading of theſe Manifeſtoes.

From the Amſtetdam Cour. and Gaz. dated May 31.

Vienna, May 18. The 16th Inſtant Count Palfi Ban of Croatia arriv'd at Court. Count Staremberg deſigns to ſet out to Morrow for Hungary; his Servants and Baggage went by Water to Day for Presbourg. The Army is to draw together the 24th at Kitſee, a League on this ſide of Presbourg; and then all the Troops will paſs the Danube, 10 Regiments excepted, who are to march to Tranſilvania under the Command of Count Rabutin; to whom 'tis ſaid the Emperour has given the Title of Prince of Tranſilvania, in Oppoſition to Prince Ragotski who has taken upon him that Title, and 'tis fear'd is ſupported ſecretly by the Ottoman Court. The Malecontents expect the Imperialiſts will turn their main Force againſt Upper Hungary, and begin with the Siege of Newheuſel, that they may not leave a Place of that Strength behind 'em; they have therefore reinforc'd the Garriſon of it to 4000 Men, and made Sluces for putting the Land round it under Water; and they give out they have an Army ready of 20000 Men, with which they pretend to cut off the Proviſions of the Imperialiſts, and keep them perpetually alarm'd if they beſiege Newheuſel. Thoſe 20000 Men are to be commanded by Count Eſterhaſi. The Princeſs Elizabeth Chriſtina of Brunſwick-Wolfenbuttel arriving at Cloyſter-Neuburg, was welcom'd by the Miniſters of Hanover, Wolfenbuttel, and Modena: The Duke del Vaſto, the Spaniſh Ambaſſador, made his Compliment to her likewiſe; but ſhe being not yet declar'd his King's Bride, he had no other Retinue than 3 Perſons; he led her by the Hand to the Church and back agen. On her Arrival here the 14th in the Evening, ſhe was conducted to the Court in her own Coach, but her Retinue were in the Emperour's Coaches: Count Paar led her into the Apartment of the Empreſs, and thence into another Apartment where the Emperour and Empreſs welcom'd her; ſhe kiſs'd their Imperial Majeſty's Hands, and they embrac'd her with great Marks of Affection: Thence ſhe was conducted to the Empreſs Dowager, and afterwards to the Arch-Dutcheſſes. Then ſhe retir'd into her own Apartment till Supper, when the Emperour plac'd himſelf at the middle of a long Table, and had on his Right Hand the Empreſs Dowager, on his Left the Empreſs; near the End of the Table, on the Right Hand of the Emperour, ſat the firſt and third Arch-Dutcheſſes; and over againſt them were plac'd the ſecond Arch-Dutcheſs and the Princeſs of Wolfenbuttel.

Vienna, May 21. The Archbiſhop of Colocza is arriv'd here from Hungary, and has had ſeveral Conferences with the Imperial Miniſters and eſpecially with the Cardinal of Saxe-Zeyts Primate of Hungary, on the State of Affairs in that Kingdom: Whether his Endeavours to bring about an Accommodation between the Malecontents and this Court will have any Effect, is yet uncertain; but 'tis hop'd Count Rechteren, Envoy extraordinary of the States General, who is expected hourly, will do much to the forwarding that good Work. The 19th Count Guido Staremberg ſet out for Hungary; and ſome flatter themſelves he will be able to do great things with the Army he commands, becauſe it will conſiſt of full 16000 Men, well provided with all things; but the Malecontents are of Opinion they ſhall be able to deal with him. The Turks have ſignified they are willing Commiſſioners on both Sides ſhould inquire into and accommodate the Affair of Kezkemet in a friendly Manner. Yeſterday in the Evening the Court return'd from Laxembourg, where they had been 2 Days entertaining the Princeſs of Wolfenbuttel with the Diverſion of Hawking. The Emperour and all the Imperial Family, appear to be extremely pleas'd with that Princeſs. Letters from Great-Waradin of the 25th of laſt Month tell us, that Collonel Becker Governour of that Place having Intelligence that Count Caroli after having ravag'd the Diſtricts of Halmas and Bellinies, was retir'd towards Deva with Part of his Men; detach'd 300 Men of his Garriſon and ſome German Volunteers, to fall upon the Rebels which Count Caroli had left behind: Not far from Bellinies that Detachment attack'd 300 of the Rebels, kill'd moſt of them, and return'd to Great-Waradin with 63 Waggons or Carts loaded with Booty, about 200 Head of Cattle, and 50 Priſoners. They write from Buda the 5th Inſtant, that they had Advice there the Diet ſummon'd by Prince Ragotski to meet at Onoth the 1ſt of this Month, was prorogu'd to the 16th, at which time not only the Hungarian Nobility, but Deputies from the Cities, Towns, and Villages, are invited to appear there. The Detachment order'd from Lombardy to Naples, and which is ſuppos'd to be now on the March, conſiſts of 5 Regiments of Foot, viz. thoſe of Geſwind, Taun, Wetzel, Wallis, and Haindel;

2 of Cuiraſſiers, viz. thoſe of Neuburg and Caraffa; 3 of Dragoons, viz. thoſe of Vaubonne, Pate, and Sinzendorff; and 80 Huſſars. Count Taun General of the Artillery commands them in Chief, and under him the Marquis de Vaubonne, Lieutenant General, the Major Generals Pate and Wetzel, and an Imperial Adjutant General. With this Body go likewiſe, Collonel Pompeati Commiſſary General, 6 Officers to take Care of the Proviſions; 2 Maſter-Bakers with 50 Servants; 2 Waggon-Maſters; 8 Leather Pontons; an Officer with a certain Number of Men to lay Bridges; a Train of 8 Pieces of Artillery, with a Captain and other Officers, Gunners, and others belonging thereto; a Deputy from the Secretary of War, with 3 Clerks; &c.

Francfort, May 29. The Duke of Wirtemberg and the Hereditary Prince of Durlach, are encamp'd near Bretten with the Troops that were in the Lines, and are forming an Army with Deſign to make a Diverſion towards Bruchſal. Our Artillery that was in the Lines was ſav'd, but not the Stores of Hay, Oats and Meal. The Enemy continue about Raſtad, waiting for Orders from the Court of France what Enterprize to go upon next. Their Parties make Excurſions as far as Graben. The Marſhal de Villars has ſent 1400 Sauvegardes to the Villages quite to Heydelberg, and is paid dear for them.
